Fall Frocks—Special Showing

-Presenting Every Smart Autumn Fashion for Woman and Miss, at a Specialized Price

Two things will impress you about this event-the completeness of selection, and the quality and extreme smartness of each model. And these outstanding characteristics will be permanent features of this group. For this, our first complete showing for the Fall season, is a demonstration of what you may expect to find here at all times. Here, Saturday, you'll see Frock after Frock, each an example of what is new and smart for its particular occasion.

Frocks for All Occasions Frocks for Every Figure-Type

No matter what your type-whether you wear size 14 or 52-you may be smartly clad for every occasion if you but learn the secret of choosing from this group. For every woman's type has been considered, and very carefully has each model been chosen to enhance the charms of the young miss, the fashionable woman and the smart matron.

Felt and Velour Hats

Saturday There Are New Styles at

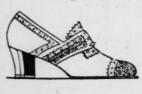

Decidedly the Hat of the moment is the Hat of felt or velour-and in the section of moderately priced millinery scores of new models appear Saturday. Deft fingers have draped the crowns in unusual ways-creasing, tucking, folding them into lines of extreme chic. Grosgrain ribbon is the only smart trimmingsometimes matching, sometimes contrasting.

Deep Greens, Rich Blues, Soft Tans and Browns, Chanel Red and Black are shown in variety.

New Rayon Soleil Felts and Velours, $10 and $15

$10 and $15, you'll say, are the distinctive styling and remarkable quality of these Hats. Each has a distinct individuality; and all the colors that Paris says are smartest are here.

Gordon Campbell Appeals.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Gor don Campbell, who was sentence to two years in prison and fined $1000 after conviction last year in Montana on charges of using th mails to defraud in connection with bil operations, has petitioned the Supreme Court to set aside the verdicts of the lower courts. In a brief accompanying the petition for a writ of certiorari, he charged that the District Court has misstated the evidence, misstated the tow and misdirected the jury. The petition urged the Court to hear argument looking to a reversal of the judgment of the Circuit Courset Appeals, which upbeld the verdict of the District Court, and award a new trial.

TESTIMONY USED IN MILLSPAUGH CASE

Supreme Court Justice Otto Takes Stand, Explains He Intended to Drop Present Prosecution.

Supreme Judge Otto when Attorney-General to Roy T. Myers, casher of the defunct Citizens' Trust Co. of Gorin, Mo., in consideration ecution of Frank C. Millspaugh, former State Finance Commission er, has failed to save Myers from being tried on charges of receiving deposits after he knew the bank was in a failing condition.

Circuit Judge Cooley at the Myers trial here today overruled a plea in sbatement filed by Myers' ttorney, who sought to stop the roceedings on the ground of the immunity promised. Judge Cooley made no comment on the motion other than merely to announce that was overruled. -

The action followed testimony by Judge Otto this morning. Curtis A. Betts of the Post-Dispatch staff had testified yesterday that he was directed by Judge Otto to inform epresentatives of Myers that if vidence in his posse fillspaugh to have failed to examne the bank after knowledge that was in a failing condition, and if Myers would produce the evidence ie, Otto, would grant immunity of cution to Myers.

Judge Otto on Stand

Judge Otto today refused to corborate Betts' testimony in full, lenying the actual promise of immunity, but saying that he told Betts, he could tell Myers that if the xpected evidence was produced he Otto) would feel it his duty to osecute Millspaugh and give no ttention to others who might be

He testified that he had considred that to be a proper course beause of his opinion that the pubofficial guilty of official wrongdoing was more deserving of pun-ishment than the average citizen who committed a crime.

Judge Otto corroborated Betts estimony of the several meetings and of the circumstances surround ing Myers' confession in El Paso, in hich he involved Millspaugh and which resulted in Millspaugh's re-moval from office by Gov. Baker.

Millspaugh later was twice in Scotland County charges of failing to examine the Gorin Bank after he had knowland Millspaugh escaped trial on the Couldn't Grant Immunity. After Myers had given his state-nent to the Attorney-General it developed that the Attorney-Gen-eral was without power to grant immunity, and that that power rested solely with the Prosecuting Attorney of Scotland County. He refused to co-operate in the plans of the former Attorney-General.

Attorneys for Myers, after the plea in abatement had been overruled, filed a motion for a change of venue from Judge Cooley. This also was overruled. And they then filed a second plea in abatement asking that the proceedings be stopped on the ground that Myers had testified before the grand jury of Jackson County as to matters involved in the charges against him, and that his appearance before the grand jury served to grant him immunity in the case on trial. Judge Cooley directed that testi-mony be heard on the plea, and dismissed the jury until the afternoon session of the court.

Judge Cooley overruled the selection of a jury was begun.

Never in Our History a Sale Like This One

There have been many $100 Sales of Fur Coats in St. Louis in the last two or three years-BUT NEVER ONE LIKE

When it is all over and the Coats are gone-which should take not over four or five hours—we believe women who secure them will admit that never in their lives had they expected to buy such garments for $100.

"It seems positively absurd to sell these Coats for $100," said our fur buyer, "but we want to do something for our August Fur sale that women will never forget."

If the Coats create among the women of St. Louis one-half the sensation they have already created in the store this sale will be the talk of the city Saturday.

Of course it would be absolutely impossible for any store to sell Fur Coats of these grades for $100 without taking a loss of several thousand dollars, but we went to manufacturers with whom we do big business and asked each to let us have a few Coats-even if only one or two-at a real sacrifice-just to make this wonderful sale possible. Not one refused. Then, by cutting off our own profit, we are able to sell the Coats at $100.

OF MOUNTAINS, DIES AT 80 neen on her fourth attempt to Enginered Some of Most Difficult Railway Feats in Linking East With West.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.— William Hood, one of the best know nengineers in the group that planned the transcontinental railoads, died here last night. He was 80 years old. For many years he was chief engineer for the Southern Pacific Railroad Co., retiring

He began work as an ax man with the Central Pacific Railroad in 1867. He was with the engineering crew that built the Central Pacific line that linked with the Union Pacific at Promentory Mountain, Utah, in 1869, this form-

As an employe of the Southern Pacific, Mr. Hood put that road across the difficult Tehachapi Pass in California, butla the Lucin cu off across Salt Lake, conceived the "S" line to cross the Siskiyou Mountains betwen California and Oregon, constructed the Dumbar-ton cut-off across lower San Fransisco Bay and completed a line between San Diego and Arizona

Mr. Hood covered practically every one of the 11.00 miles of the Southern Pacific system on foot before the rails were laid. He once worked on a plan for E. H. Harriman's "Dream railroad," which was to have connected North and South America. He received the doctor of science degree from Dartmouth in 1923.

The Only Saturday in Which the Business Woman, and Miss, May Save in the August Events

Coats, both of Fur and Fur Trimmed, are offered Saturday at prices which, we feel sure, will be impossible of duplication, either now or later on. The strike of tailors and furriers has created a very chaotic market condition. In the interest of economy, immediate selection of next Winter's Coat is advisable.

pecial to the Post-Dispatch.
HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 27.—A raid on the Palace Hotel at noon by Herrin policemen led by Mayor McCormick in person resulted in the arrest of Monroe Armes, Mack Pullman and Eddie Crompton. The Mayor said the raid was the result of a warning given to gangsters several weeks ago that if they did not cease beating innocent citi them in fail as often as they were caught on the streets. In today's raid a large quantity of arms and ammunition was confiscated by the police, including 25 or 30 revolvers, sawed-off shotuns and rifles equipped with siencers. Accompanying the officers in the raid was Col. Robert W. Davis of Carbondale, dispatched here by Adjutant-General Black to report on rumors of trouble in Williamosn County following the shooting of Harry Walker and Evrett Smith, near Marion. Armes and Pullman are members of the same gang to which Walker and ill follow, the Mayor stated. Several weeks ago Armes and Ray Walker were arrested by the ofice on vagrancy charges but heir cases were dismissed for lack evidence. Since that time there have been numerous fights and threats of personal violence by

BARON' WAIVES EXTRADITION EAST ON BAD CHECK CHARGE .

Questioned by Immigration Officers at Albuquerque.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 27.-Immigration officers will further question the young man held here who claims to be Baron George Exter Friedrich von Krupp Jr., disinherited son of the head of the Krupp factories in Germany. He admits he used the name George Adorjan Gabor in the East where he is wanted on bad check charges.

He said last night he would waive extradition to return to Wil-mington, Del., to face a charge of ssuing a bad check. He denied having cashed a check there or in Pittsburg, Pa., where he is wanted

Investigators are inclined to believe the story told by the youth's companion. Charles Taetsch, a Brown University student, who de-clares the "Baron" cashed checks in both Wilmington and Pittsburg. Taetsch, engaged by the "Baron" as a traveling companion, said he was suspicious of the "Baron" but hat his suspicions were allayed on Federal Highway Aid.

Henry Ford and other prominent with the Krupp family has been men.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 27 .for court permission to place the A request has been made to the boy under the care of some other Missouri Supreme Court to reverse person. He admitted the present itself on its recent decision holding Gowland's attorney told the Court that in addition to supporting his former wife, now Mrs.

that Federal aid money for State highway construction is a gratuity and is State money to be expended according to the provisions of the ing his former wife, now Mrs, Beatrice Meakin, in his home, according to the provisions of the Gowland had obtained motion nice. Gowland had obtained motion picture work for her and her husband. Gowland achieved fame as "McTeague" in the motion picture "McTeague" in the motion picture "Circed." based on Frank Nortis." based on Frank Norris' high State court, is making the request. It is in the form of a mo tion for a rehearing of a case involving construction of a grade crossing by the railroad.

The decision of the State Public Service Commission held that the proposed grade crossing over the C., R. I. & P. tracks, near St. Joseph, did not necessitate the con-struction of a viaduct over the tracks, which the State Highway Department ordered. The Public Service Commission held that the crossing was not unusually dangerous, while the Supreme Court ruled

tion," the high State court's opinion said, "it is the presence of the railroad track which makes necessary he construction of the viaduct Take away the railroad track and there would be no more need for viaduct than a Chinese pagoda." The motion of the railroad com any maintained that the recent ecision of the Supreme Court ailed to construe a section of the State aid law of 1921, which de-fines the duty of the State High-way Commission respecting the application of the payment of the State's proportion of such an ex-penditure, out of the State road fund, as distinguished therein from the Federal aid fund. The section rovides that "the Highway Comission is authorized to pay the state's proportion of the cost of roads constructed with Federal and State funds out of the State road

Ruling Sets Precedent. "That section," the motion al-leged, "limits the authority of that fund to the Federal Government's proportion of the cost of the particular project as fixed and determined by it, and that the Public Service Commission in apportioning the cost of construction of any Federal aid project between the State and any failroad is also lim ited in its authority to the fund ou of which the State proportion is to be paid, which is the State road and," the motion points out.

A ruling on the subject is neces sary, the railroad company's mo-tion asserted, "to the end that we this court as a guide for future onduct in the expenditure of th enormous sums of money which necessarily will have to be made in elimination of grade crossings

The questions involved are far more importance than the m ount involved in this suit; an we have the right to ask, and it litigation as far as it can be don establishing a precedent in th case for future conduct of simil ases, which will unquestionable rise from time to time as the State continues its road building proARONBERG'S—St. Louis' Greatest Credit Jewelers

FIGHT BEGUN AGAINST CONVICT

Union Officers to Take Matter to Courts If 'Necessary, They Announce at Lexington,

LEXINGTON, Mo., Aug. 27 .-A resolution to fight for the with-drawal of convict labor from the mines here was passed at a mass meeting of miners and other citizens here last night. Union officers said their organization would take the matter into the courts in an effort to obtain a cancellation. They charged the deal was consummated in secret and that they were not aware of the change until the convicts appeared.

Nearly 300 miners are out of work, it is said, as the result of the State's action. This unemploy-ment will partly be remedied when the Western Coal and Mining Co. opens its south mine about Spiced Cantaloupe.

Ingredients necessary for this dainty are four cantaloupes, four cups of sugar, three cups vinegar, one tablespoon mixed whole spice, broke the egg. ne tablespoon ground cloves, one tablespoon cinnamon, two spoons whole mace and one clove garlic (uncut).

Remove a thick paring from rind of cantaloupe: cut away all soft pink part; cut in 1/2-inch strips and 2-inch lengths. Soak over night in cold salt water, us-ing 2 tablespoons salt to each quart water. Put in kettle, cover with boiling water and cook gently till soft; drain. Make syrup by boiling together 10 minutes sugar, vinegar water and spices, tied in a bag. Add cantaloupe and simmer gently 21/4 hours. Pack in sterilized jars, add syrup to overflow and seal.

Squash and Tomatoes, Select large, firm, ripe tomatoes and summer squash that will make slices of about the same diameter. Slice unpeeled tomatoes in thick slices and the squash in rather thinner ones. Dip all in flour highly seasoned with salt, pepper and sugar and brown richin bacon fat, keeping the bacon hot. Be sure that the squash is

ayes! BANANAS The Body Builder

Fine Food for Baby

Ask your Doctor about well ripened BANANAS as ideal food for baby.

The Journal of the American Medical Association recently said:

"The BANANA has been the victim of one of those curious antagonisms so frequent in medicine, which makes it difficult of acceptance by lay people as a suitable infant food, although in the tropics it has been so used for generations."

 Sugar, water, and starch—that's the BANANA -the very thing baby needs for body-building.

Serving the unexpected guest is no longer a problem

When you must heat the oven for one dish plan a baked meal. When you boil, boil everything.

COME women seem to have Othe faculty of preparing a delightful luncheon, or dinner, or late evening supper, at a moment's notice. And yet it is the easiest thing in the world to do, if you know the secret.

Suppose a guest drops in unexpectedly for dinner. What could be simpler, or more appetizing, than to have Chicken a la King, especially when all that you have to do is to go to the pantry and get one or two cans of College Inn Chicken a la King, prepared for you by master chefs of the famous College Inn, of Hotel Sherman, Chicago?

If you prefer to serve "something different" we would sug-gest College Inn Chop Suey. Then there is another delightful dish-College Inn Welsh Rarebit. It is especially fine—for an afternoon or evening function. Keep a supply of College Inn Foods on hand, and you need never worry

AMBASSADOR

Downtown & Seventh & Locust Streets.

"Showplace of the World"

YESTERDAY. SEVENTH AND LOCUST STREETS. A bedlam of jostling humanity. Happy crowds. Joyous crowds. Patiently waiting in line. Eager to be among the first to glimpse the new Ambassadorto see Fairyland.

Excitement in the air. Intense interest everywhere. St. Louis has never known such an event. St. Louis has never displayed such enthusiasm.

And inside. All the glories of wonderland. All the splendor of the Orient. All the coziness of a richly lined jewel box. "Ohs" and "Ahs" from every direction. Interested exploring parties. Moving here and there. Discovering new delights. Admiring. Praising. Lauding.

In the auditorium. Matchless beauty. From every standpoint. Architecture. Colorings. Music. But best of all. The glowing faces. Mirroring the happiness brought by the Ambassador to the people.

The performance. A tremendous opening program. Characteristic, though, of all Ambassador programs to come. It's reception? - Deafening applause. Even thunderous. Never such a tumultous demonstration.

To-day is another day. New crowds will flock Downtown. New audiences will see the dazzling performance. Still more enthusiasm. Still more excitement. A repetition of yesterday's thrilling event. The Ambassador calls you. Come and see what you've helped accomplish. It's your theatre-you built it. With patronage and support. Visit this magnificent Civic institution. Drink it all in. Miss nothing.

Dictator Rivera's Order Closes Casino at San Sebastian.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Aug 27.-Gen. Primo de Rivera, Premier-Dictator of Spain, changed San Sebastian from an international gambling paradise into a modest law-abiding city. The in Spain should cease has served to close the casino and drive all the international "sports" out. They have crossed over to Biarritz, noted resort on the Bay of Biscay in France.

Thus San Sebastian has been turned back to the use of the Spaniards. It has become again' a family place, and normal life has been resumed. The beautiful beach datly is used by Spanish families and children by thousands are to be seen playing in the sands and wading in the waters. The wealthy foreigners who previously overran the place are gone.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, ug. 227.—The Eve ning Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

business conditions expressed in the weekly mercantile reviews, which stressed the absence of speculative excesses and the unusually active buying for this season of the year in some commercial lines. Money rates held firm, call loans renewing again at 5 per cent, but this development apparently had little influence of the day's transactions in investments. In the main a in investments. In the main a steady tone prevailed, several con-vertible issues recording advances. Rails were quiet, write tractions were in better demand.

Southern Railway forged ahead, while Great Northern was lifted to a new peak for the year and Northern Pacific developed, renewed strength. Atlantic Coast Line was stronger, while Union Pacific reached a new 1926 top.

CHAPTER XII.

NE night, rather reluctantly. he accompanied a quorum of sensation-seeking lads to a "Black and Tan" dance hall some 15 miles away from the college

The room was vast, low-ceilinged and one thought not altogether clean, though the smoky shadows lay so thickly everywhere that one could not be sure. There had been a rather pathetic attempt at decoration. Loops of cneesecioth, colration. Loops of cheesecleth, colored crepe paper bonnets over the lights—things like that. The dance floor had a fence around it, and an orchestra of Negroes wearing dinner coats played in the center. Outside the fence there were tables covered with squares of coarse stained linen and surrounded by matche Ellimatched couples. Black weirdly ill-matched couples. Black and tan. Black and white. White and tan. Black and white. White and tan. . . There was something furtive about the place; a sense of wreng-doing. You breathed it in with the atmosphere. You read it in the shifting eyes. It was, in fact, what brought you there and made you stay.

They took a table close to the

They took a table close to the railing. They were quite uproarious already, and in order that they might continue to be so they ordered drinks from a dark-skinned waitress who put her arms across the shoulders of the nearest two boys as she listened. . . Jock hoped she would hurry with the drinks. The place filled him with aversion and loathing, and he wanted liquor with which to overcome this feeling before his companions should detect it and begin to "kid" him. He was now, as always, eager him. He was now, as always, eager to seem to enjoy the things that they enjoyed—to be a good fellow, no matter what secret shivers of

He looked about him, grancing quickly from one table to the next... If you let your eyes rest long on any one spot in a place like this you acquired entangling alliances.

Atter a moment he gave a barely perceptible jump and then almost, not quite, cried out. Brad Hatha-Sitting alone at a table in a distant corner. Steady old Brad, who never drank, who never dissi-pated, alone in this dive! . . .

Jock leaned back in his chair, feeling suddenly shaken and tired and a little old. Brad. Alone. When you came to a Black-and-Tan with a crowd, that was one thing. You were sight-seeing, then; being devilish in a different way. You meant no evil. But you came alone, a sneak in the night, that was something else again. . . Brad. Of all people.

again. . . Brad. Of all people.

The others were watching a woman dance, a fat black woman in brief striped satin knickers and red stockings. They were making jocular comments among themselves. None of them had discovered Brad as yet, and Jock became determined on the instant that none should discover him. "I'll have to let him know we're here," he told himself. "I'll have to get him out somehow or the whole him out somehow or the whole college will be talking about it in the morning.

As though this thought had in the doorway and flung them and they had stuck where they hit. It was a museum of memories his head and saw them. And if separate exhibit with its history.

Jock had had any doubts in his Peg adored it, and frequently mind as to Brad's guilt, he lost them now. Brad rose instantly and moved along the far aisle, his head bent low, his hat on, shading his face. . . . In a moment he had vanished through the outer door.

"Pretended he didn't know me." Jock thought. "Slinking out like a criminal. Brad! If it was anyone else I wouldn't care, but Brad why, it—it's like losing your faith in God!"

He pushed back his chair and stood up. "I'm going." he said gruffly.

Attention centered on him then and voices pattered against his cars: "What for?" . . . "Going? Why, we just got here!" "What's the big idea?" . . . What's the matter, Jock, got cold feet or something?" . . "Yah, the boy is going to go south on us."

They were kidding him, but it didn't matter now. Nothing mattered except Brad. "Got to go." "Damn place makes

The Musical Club concert that tiated the holidays went off better than anyone could possibly have expected, and when it was over Jock stayed on for a little visit ed particularly to do this, succumbing without enthusiasm to Bones' urgent entreaties, but he was glad afterward that he had. "How can I tell you? I don't know myself why I cover it up. It's instinctive. I'm afraid to let anyone see what's inside. I-I have an idea they're going to think it's a joke, or something. Inhibited, Peg. That's me all over. "I think it's a shame," said Peg.

"Why?" "Why? Why not?" She sat bolt upright, excitedly. "Because it isn't fair! It's not fair to you yourself, that's why! If people don't amount to much can pretend they do and put it over successfully, more power to 'em, I say. But for a person who does amount to something to make out he doesn't is-is She stopped, groping for the word. Not finding it, she relapsed again on to the pillows. just a natural damn fool," she finished.

Jock roared. "Good Lord, Peg, but I don't amount to anything!

"And he won't even admit it to me!" sighed Peg. She sat up again, wagging a denunciatory finger. "Last night at dinner mother said, We have tickets for the Sym-phony, don't you three want to go?" I peeked over at you, and your face was all lit up like a new saloon. And then Bones said, 'Hell, no, we are going with a bunch out to Canter Inn.' Business of glim-dousing, and Mr. Hamill's countenance returns to normalcy. And what happens then? Why, you go to Canter Inn, and foxtrot till 3 a. m., and drink rotten booze out of a teacup, and pretend you're having the time of your life! Trouble is, Jock, you lack the courage of your convictions. Why couldn't you have come right out and said. 'I'd rather go to the Symphony'?"

"Oh, that," said Jock, "that was just silly. Music happens to be a weakness of mine, that's all." He grinned suddenly. "Say, you have got my number for sure, haven't you?"

Peg nodded approvingly. "That's Take off the old clown-suit, I know "It's off." announced Jock. "Now

"Now," said Peg, burrowing deeper into her chair and leaning her head back, "tell me all about your girl."

Of a sudden this seemed extremely desirable—to tell Feg all about Yvonne. Jock had not known how much he had wanted to tell someone about her ever since the beginning, nor how greatly his heart had vearned for an audience sympathetic and comprehending, as

Peg would be. So he told her. Hesitantly, at first, because confession was an unaccustomed luxury with him, but waxing more loquacious as he went along. He described his meeting with Yvonne, and the hours he had spent with her since, and the things she had done and said. He essayed a description. He told of his wretchedness and the vacuity of his days, now, when she was away . . . He talked for a long time, and he was boyishly lovable and appealing, and very, very earn-

When he had finished he felt better than he had felt in weeks. As though a tension had snapped. Telling someone, some outsider, bow wonderful Yvonne was seemed to bring back her wonderfulness "Sit down!" Peg directed. "I asked you up here to talk, not to was almost like seeing her. "What's been the matter with me?" he wondered, "-thinking the things I have been about her. They're not true. Why, I know they're not true!" grateful to Peg beyond words. It took a chair. "Well, what'll we seemed to him that just by sitting there motionless, watching him as he talked, she had helped him to rid his mind of presumptions that were unworthy. His eyes wandered over her now, from the expanse of symmetrical silken leg to the bright hair, and the nose . . . He smiled inwardly at Peg's nose. It was so appropriate to Peg! Impudent, gamin . . . and alert and interested looking when she listened.

> "Gosh," he said suddenly, "old Bones is lucky I'd give anything if you were my sister."

He left Boston two days later, and spent Christmas and the week following Christmas with his mother. The days at home were exact counterparts of the days at the Allens'-jazz and jubilation-except for Peg. Long after he had returned to college she remained in otherwise muddled and meaningless vacation.

. There is only one question in the world that is more urgently asked than this, "Will you marry me?" may be asked with more breath-taking suspense, more agonizing doubt, but when he asks her to set the date, he is pleading with all his heart.

For the hours between her longed-for "yes" and the peals of the wedding march are each a long eternity for him. Happiness is just when he will hear the words, "I pronounce you man and wife." He may dread all the elaborate formality of the ceremony. The thought of all'the fuss and the bridesmaids and ushers and families and friends to be greeted. He may feel quite sure that the ring will prove lost at the last second and that he will step on the bride's train and do every other awkward and dreaded thing. But in spite of all his dreads, he looks forward to that hour with heartsick longing.

And why shouldn't he? For when that is over he will have her all to himself for ever and ever. It won't be a matter then of waiting for & o'clock so that he may take her off for a few short hours at theater
